Knowledge Building with Writing Activities (K-1st) Course Guide

Lesson 1: Knowledge Building Writing Activities

In this lesson, you will learn how to use drawing, labeling, and sentence- and paragraph-level writing activities to help children build knowledge, use new vocabulary, organize their thinking, and communicate what they are learning.

Major Goals for the Lesson Are To:

1. Identify knowledge-building writing activities that support children's language, vocabulary, mental models, and reading comprehension.
2. Evaluate and plan writing activities that reinforce content knowledge and give children meaningful opportunities to use new vocabulary.

Rate Your Knowledge

On a scale of 1–10, rate your knowledge of the lesson topic.

Application Checklist

- Review a writing activity in an upcoming unit. Consider how you could revise it to help children use content knowledge and vocabulary rather than simply complete a writing task.
- Plan one sentence-level writing activity for an upcoming lesson using gradual release of responsibility. Include time for children to talk through their ideas before writing.
- Try one knowledge-building writing routine: drawing and labeling, sentence expansion, sentence combining, or shared paragraph writing- to help children organize and communicate what they have learned.
